If you elect health insurance coverage, the employee premium for the health insurance will be deducted from your pay on a pre-tax basis unless you direct otherwise. Each paycheck will have a benefit deduction. The above "Employee Monthly Premium" reflects an employer contribution of up to 50% of the "Employee Only" single coverage for the Base plan.

If you do not turn in a timesheet, no deductions can be made for that week and the deduction will be added to the next pay. For example, if your monthly premium is $125.48, you would have a $28.96 pre-tax deduction from each week's pay. If you do not turn in a timesheet one week, $57.92 will be deducted from your next pay.
